

I am going to Alys Stephens today!

Today I am going to Alys Stephens to watch a show. When we arrive, I will walk with my group/family to the building.

I will wait in line with my group/family. When it is my turn, an usher or staff member will scan my ticket and show me where I will sit.

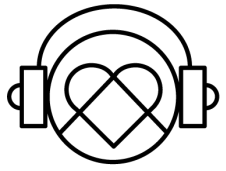

Center staff members have name tags. If I get lost from my group/family or can't find my seat, I can ask a staff member to help me.

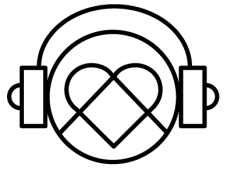

There are 4 theaters in the Center. I need to stay with my group/family so I know where to go and so that I will be safe.

There are a lot of stairs in the theater. I need to walk and make sure I hold onto the rails to keep myself and everyone around me safe.

Elevators are also available if my group/family need to use them.

The Center also has sensory bags and a sensory escape area that can help me calm down. A staff member can help me find a bag or take a break at a sensory escape area.

Sometimes the show will be loud and sometimes there will be bright lights. I can use the headphones and the sunglasses in my sensory bag if the show is too loud or too bright for me.

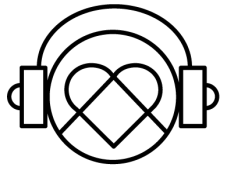

Using the items in my sensory bag helps me to stay calm and enjoy the show with my group/family.

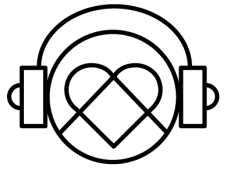

If I am feeling overwhelmed/nervous,
I can ask to go to a quiet space. The Center staff can direct me to the closest one.

The Center also has a family restroom I can use with my group/family if I need to take a break from the show.

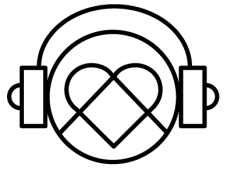

When the show is over, everyone will clap. I can stand and clap with my group or stay in my seat and wait for my group/family to get ready to leave.

I will listen and follow my group/family when it is time to leave. A lot of people will be leaving at the same time and I need to stay with my group/family to stay safe. Staying with my group/family makes everyone feel good.

I can't wait to come back to see a show at Alys Stephens!

A woman with red-rimmed glasses and a grey t-shirt stands next to a young girl in a green t-shirt with 'LUCKY GIRL' and shamrock patterns. They are both smiling. The background shows a fair at night with colorful lights and a structure labeled 'PLAZA'.

I had a great day at Alys Stephens!
